Corporate Counsel Roundtable (1:20:10)

The ways companies use technology to prevent disputes or facilitate identification of litigation or compliance/regulatory risk.

The Corporate Counsel Roundtable featured a group discussion and dialogue on how today's industry leaders use technology to prevent disputes and mitigate risk. Our speakers join moderator and CPR panelist Janice Sperow in exploring the accelerating data transformation's role in avoiding litigation, securing compliance, and minimizing risk across a wide range of industries, sectors, and markets. From "big data," software development, retail sales, to aerospace and defense, learn how these experts navigate the benefits and challenges of today's technology and tomorrow's automation.

Panel #1: Creating Leverage: How Tech Companies Can Use Investment Treaties To Mitigate Regulatory Risk (1:00:57)

The technology sector is increasingly in the crosshairs of foreign regulators. Tech companies are not, however, without tools to mitigate the risk of inappropriate foreign regulatory interference. International arbitration against foreign governments under investment treaties is one such tool. Even the threat of an investment treaty claim can provide meaningful leverage in negotiations with governments.

This panel discusses how technology companies can use investment treaties to mitigate regulatory risk, covering topics including: how can technology companies qualify for investment treaty protection, how do investment treaties protect investors, and how do investors enforce their rights under investment treaties.

Panel #2: Why Do I.T. Outsourcing Projects Fail: How To Keep Them Going With Dispute Resolution Boards and Standing Neutrals (1:12:14)

IT Projects are especially vulnerable to the damage caused by friction among contracting parties, particularly when this friction turns into a formal dispute.

This panel will discuss how incorporating a "Standing Neutral" - defined as a trusted, independent expert advisor (or a panel of three advisors) chosen by the contracting parties at the onset of the relationship with the explicit goal to maintain a healthy relationship - can be used as a preventive approach to conflict resolution. This panel takes a multi-dimensional perspective - incorporating the views of academia and practice.
