

Patrycja Kolwas
Senior Disputes Counsel
COFCO International
Geneva, Switzerland

Patrycja Kolwas is a qualified, practicing attorney with a professional focus on international and domestic dispute resolution. She has gained her professional experience both in private practice and as in-house counsel.

In 2007, she joined Weil, Gotshal & Manges in Warsaw as an associate in the Corporate Department to move, after one year, to Weil's Litigation and Arbitration Department where she spent almost eight years. She was responsible for advising clients on complex commercial disputes and representing them in the proceedings before courts and arbitral tribunals.

In 2016, she joined COFCO International, a large commodity trading company. She holds a Senior Disputes Counsel position and is based in Geneva. In her day-to-day work, she focuses on advising the company on commercial disputes in various jurisdictions, including arbitration, cross-border litigation, insolvency and restructuring proceedings, and enforcement proceedings.

Since graduating in law, she successfully completed a number of post-graduate studies, including LL.M. in International Dispute Settlement at the Geneva University and the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies.