

James Pike is a Vice President in Fluor Corporation's law department where he is a member of the company's dispute resolution team in Irving, Texas. He has worked for Fluor for thirteen years and held a variety of roles. Currently, James focuses on assisting with the prevention and resolution of construction and engineering disputes. He has held assignments in the United States and internationally, having been assigned to Fluor's office in Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates office for four years.