

Ross Andre is Senior Litigation Counsel at Southern Company, an Atlanta-based energy company serving more than nine million customers through its electric and gas operating companies. As Senior Litigation Counsel, Ross oversees a broad portfolio of enterprise-level litigation. He also manages internal investigations, subpoena responses, and a variety of litigation-related projects, including the development and implementation of policies and procedures.

Prior to joining Southern in 2017, Ross was an associate with Troutman Sanders LLP, where he practiced in their Financial Services Litigation group, and an associate with Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton LLP, in their Complex Business Litigation group. He is a graduate of Emory College and Emory University School of Law, both in Atlanta.